

A NEW SPECIAL ITEM PINK "PORT" FROM SOUTH AFRICA

The De Krans wine cellar is located close to the small town of Calitzdorp in the Western Cape Province of South Africa. They decided to create a port wine which would ideally suit the South African conditions and the warm climate. This led to them taking advantage of the popularity of rosé wine in order to create a drink which enthusiasts of port wine would be able to enjoy all year long. They wanted to make something similar to a white port wine but with a fruity taste, as well as depth and length. In 2008, the first Port Rosé wine was finally created and it exceeded all expectations.
